I hereby certify that:

1. I have not granted any rights of the aforementioned article or research paper to any other person, institute, publication, or third party.
2. I contributed this article entirely on my own; it has not been published or plagiarized in any way. It doesn't violate the rights of anybody else and doesn't contain any defamatory or untrue assertions. All citations have been properly acknowledged when applicable.
3. I consent to defend this journal against any legal or other claim or action based on facts. This, if true, would be a breach of the aforementioned warranties.
4. The article was not previously published or submitted; it was only submitted to this publication, elsewhere for publication in a work protected by copyright.
5. I hereby give you permission to revise, adapt, and otherwise alter the article or research paper to meet the requirements of your journal.

Open Access Rule:

Without requiring a subscription to the journal in which the articles are published, open access is a publishing approach that offers immediate, universal, barrier-free access to the full text of research publications.

So long as correct author acknowledgment is given, readers are free to copy, use, distribute, transmit, and publicly display the work as well as create and distribute derivative works in any digital medium for any lawful purpose. Additionally, authors that submit their work to open access journals keep the article's copyright. Open Access journals go through the same peer review and quality control as any other scholarly journal, much like traditional subscription-based journals. Additionally, Open Access enables the greatest possible awareness, adoption, and use of the published work.
